

ABSTRACT

An "exchange" intermediates transactions involving reward points between reward programme participants providers and reward programme providers. Such an exchange may, for example, transact buying, selling or transferring points from, to, or between reward programme participants. The exchange offers to buy reward points from reward programme participants at a discounted value, and sell points to the reward programme provider at a cost value or to reward programme participants at a premium.